The Final Challenge

10 So far today, Maeve had chased away three dragons and 20 one troll who had wandered too far from the mountain.
30 She dragged the sword behind her and sighed. It wasn't 40 that she disliked her job – being protector of the realm
50 was an incredible honour – it was just a little boring
52 at times.

65 She looked down at her list of things to do. A farmer had 74 complained that something was scaring the sheep. 'It was 81 probably another dragon,' thought Maeve. 'Simple enough
84 to chase away.'

92 Arriving at the field, Maeve immediately felt that 99 something was wrong. Suddenly, an enormous shadow
108 appeared and a deep, slow voice said: "Welcome, Maeve, 112 to the final challenge."

The night Grendel struck was the darkest night of all. He waited until Hrothgar had gone to his bed, until only the lords who nightly guarded Heorot were left. They were fast asleep when he pounced. He was upon them so suddenly and with such violence and fury that none could escape the terrible slaughter. Thirty lords he murdered in his bloodlust, as savage and swift in his death-dealing as a maddened fox in a chicken hut. He left not one of them alive, but carried them off home to his lair to feast on their blooded corpses at his leisure. Only when day broke did Hrothgar and his warriors discover the dreadful evidence of the holocaust at Heorot. Gone now were the laughter and the music. Hrothgar sat silent in his grief and despair. His warriors too mourned
